Indian Stone Implements.

590. Pipe. Sandstone. Representing the trunk of a human figure—one well defined arm and hand; lacking the other arm, head and legs (if there were any of the latter). The bowl is in the centre of the back; the hole for the stem in the posterior. At top of the back are three triangles with circles in each—these are undoubtedly original, as they are sandworn and drew a former owner to the belief of a knowledge of masonry by the maker (who knows but this may be correct?) Length of figure 5 inches. Found by Mr. Chris. Kenringer, near a mound on his farm, on Seven-mile Creek, 5 miles west of Hamilton, O., in 1876. Rude but very interesting and valuable. 15.00.
 712. Pipe. Found by F. A. Altman, Fuller Co., Ohio. Polished black basaltic rock. The bowl of the pipe is cylindrical in shape. The base, which is drilled for the stem, is oblong with the sides and corners nearly rounded down. The neck concave. Below the base extends a flange through which is drilled a hole for suspension. On the bowl facing the smoker is a remarkably well carved Indian face. Total height $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches. Very fine and valuable. 10.00.
